

Get to know your Classmates:

Chances are very good that the person sitting next to you on Day One is feeling just about the same as you are – and the person on the other side, and behind you too. Your classmates are your allies, your future friends, and an important resource to improve your success ratio. Adult Learning Centre students come to truly appreciate the camaraderie and help they get from their classmates, so why not start early by getting to know the people around you? Past Student Advisory Committees agree this is the number one tip for enjoying your time back at school – and for making sure you reach your goal.
