

Keep Your Goal in Mind

You've come back to school for a reason. For many adult students, the goal is long term and ambitious, and their time at McLeod or Transcona is only the first stage. If this is the case for you, we applaud you for your decision to make such an important change in your life. Many students before you have continued on to realize big goals, and you can do it too. However, it is easy to lose sight of that "forest", when one is in the midst of the "trees", so pause now and again to re-dream your dream. Reflect on your progress towards it, and give yourself some back pats. You can even let your dream take firmer shape while you are at one of our centres. There are a number of units in courses that will give you a reason to learn more about the career you are aiming for, or develop a skill that will be directly relevant to the "new you". You can also plan your assignments to work double-time for you.

For other students, the long-term goal is not yet clear, but they discover it while at McLeod or Transcona. Or, perhaps for you, it is like we hear many students say, "I just want my Grade 12". This goal, as you achieve it – so our graduates tell us -- brings unexpected benefits, in new-found confidence that in itself opens new doors.
